Hey all I caught my first evp... lets see if this works. It is right at beginning of file so don't bother listening to rest. I have to learn to shorten these somehow but it's right at front...sounds like it is saying you need to.. something... something.... hope this works

Romeosarabella Sorry, but can not identify what it says well, I guess it will be a thing of the language, I certainly do not seem to tell me "something." Listen to your phrase exactly? a hug

I can hear, "You Need," but it's difficult to tell if this is a true EVP or not. A good thing to do when editing a clip is to leave a few seconds before the EVP and after the EVP. It gives folks a reference when listening back to it. It could also be the sound of someone moving the recorder and what our brain does is sort the sound out into familiar words (matrixing). That's why those few seconds before and after are important.

Keep up the good work!
